

Contents

1 Introducing Social Welfare, 2

Understanding Income Security

The “Social Safety Net”, 3

The Canadian Welfare System, 4

Tax Expenditures as Social Welfare, 6

Approaches to Social Welfare, 8

The Provision of Social Welfare, 10

“Universal” vs. “Selective” Programs, 12

Public Income Security Programs, 14

Government Spending on Income Security, 18

Canadian Federalism and Income Security, 20

Globalization and Social Welfare, 22

Conclusion, 23

2 The History of Social Welfare in Canada, 26

Emergence of the Welfare State

The Rise of Income Security in Canada, 27

The Transition from Feudalism to Capitalism, 28

The Elizabethan Poor Law, 30

Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834, 32

Key Historic Welfare Debates, 34

Phase 1: The Colonial Period, 1604-1867, 36

Phase 2: The Industrialization Period,

1868-1940, 38

Phase 3: The Welfare State Period, 1941-1974, 46

Conclusion, 51

3 Challenges to Social Welfare, 54

Income Security under Siege

Why the Post-War Compromise Ended, 55

The Guaranteed Annual Income Debate, 56

The Conservatives Under Mulroney,

1984-1993, 58

The Liberals Return to Power, 1993-2006, 60

The Conservatives Return, 2006, 62

Conclusion, 73

4 Social Welfare Theory, 76

Values, Ideology, and Beliefs

Why People Differ on What to Do, 77

Political Ideology Approaches to

Social Welfare, 79

Economic Theory Approaches to

Social Welfare, 84

Welfare State Regimes Approaches to

Social Welfare, 90

Gender-Based Approaches to Social Welfare, 94

Social Inclusion Approach to Welfare, 98

Conclusion, 99

5 Making Social Policy in Canada, 102

How Things Get Done ... or Not Done

Federal, Provincial, Territorial, and Municipal

Responsibilities, 103

Federal Spending Power, 104

Federalism and Social Policy Development, 106

The Global Context, 108

Policy-Making as It Actually Happens, 114

Role of Civil Society in Shaping Social Policy, 118

Conclusion, 121

6 Canadians Living in Poverty, 124

In Need of Social Assistance

The Persistence of Poverty, 125

Measuring Poverty, 126

Beyond Income, 128

Living on Welfare, 129

Myths about the Poor, 130

Three Explanations for Poverty, 132

How Much Poverty?, 134

Inequality and Poverty, 136

Social Assistance—When All Else Fails, 138

How Effective is Social Assistance?, 140

The Working Poor, 142

Homelessness, 144

Food Insecurity, 146

From Welfare to “Workfare”, 148

Prosecuting “Welfare Fraud”, 150

Conclusion, 153

7 Employment, Unemployment, and Workers’ Compensation, 156

Canadians in the Labour Market

Employment and Unemployment, 157

Employment Ratios, 158

Types of Unemployment, 160

Factors Influencing Unemployment, 162

Part-Time Employment, 164

Minimum Wage and Social Welfare, 166

Youth Unemployment, 168

Protecting Employees—EI and WC, 170

The History of Unemployment Insurance, 172

Employment Insurance: The Details, 174

EI Benefit Coverage, 176

Maternity and Parental Benefits, 178

The History of Workers’ Compensation, 180

The Efficiency/Equity Debate, 182

Conclusion, 183

8 Women and the Family, 186

Changing Roles and Emerging Household Trends

Labour Force Participation of Women, 187

Employment Equity, 188

Equal Pay for Equal Work, 190

Defining the Modern Family, 192

Changing Families, 194

Factors Changing the Modern Family, 196

Seven Biases, 198

Three Models of the Family, 200

Women and Caregiving, 202

The Need for Quality Child Care, 204

The Need for Quality Elder Care, 206

Theorization of Women’s Work and Caring, 208

Conclusion, 209

9 Children and Families in Poverty, 212

A Call to Action

A World Fit for Children, 213

Canada’s Children, 214

Market Poverty: Children in Working

Poor Families, 216

History of Benefits for Families with Children, 218

The Canada Child Tax Benefit (CCTB), 224

The National Child Benefit Supplement

(NCBS), 226

The Universal Child Care Benefit (UCCB), 228

Approaches to Children’s Social Welfare, 230

Conclusion, 231

10 The Social Welfare of Immigrants, 240

Fostering Multiculturalism and Income Security

Multicultural Canada, 241

A Brief History of Immigration to Canada, 242

Multicultural Policy, 1971, 244

Challenges Faced by New Immigrants, 246

Barriers to Finding and Keeping Work, 248

Racism and Discrimination in Employment, 250

Understanding Immigration, Income Security,

and Employment, 252

Immigration Policy Reforms, 2008 ..., 254

Conclusion, 259

11 Aboriginal Social Welfare, 262

Idle No More!

The First Nations of North America, 263

A Demographic Profile, 264

Urban Aboriginal People, 266

Aboriginal Community Well-Being, 268

Deciphering the Issues, 270

Colonialism and Government Policy

Objectives, 274

The Historical Context of Income Security for

Aboriginal Peoples, 276

Social Assistance Today, 280

Moving Towards Aboriginal

Self-Government, 281

Conclusion, 283

Acknowledgments

12 Disability and Social Welfare, 286

Income Security and Full Participation

Participation and Activity Limitation

Survey (PALS), 287

History of Services for People with Disabilities, 290

Approaches to Disability: The Medical and Political Rights Models, 292

The Independent Living Movement, 294

The Stigma of Disability, 296

Disability-Related Income Security Expenditures, 298

Federal Income Security Programs, 300

Employment Programs, 302

Provincial Disability Programs, 304

Conclusion, 307

13 The Elderly and Retired, 310

Pensions, Health Care, and Income Security

Income Security for the Elderly, 311

Canada's Seniors—Health, Finance, and Family, 312

Elderly Poverty Rates—Worrying Signs, 314

The Income Security of Older Women, 316

History of Income Security for the Elderly and Retired, 318

Income Security Programs for Seniors, 320

Changes to the Old Age Pension Eligibility, 326

Conclusion, 327

14 Globalization and Social Welfare, 330

A Social Justice Perspective

Universal Declaration of Human Rights, 1944, 331

What Is Globalization?, 332

Enforcement and Rights Protection for the Transnational Corporations, 334

Globalization in Operation, 336

Canada in the World, 338

What Are Human Rights?, 340

Negative, Positive, and Collective Rights, 342

Social Welfare, Globalization, and

Human Rights, 344

Social Investment Approach, 346

Conclusion, 347

Appendices, 350

Glossary, 366

References, 382

Index, 388

Photo Credits, 399

Other Credits, 401

Crafting works such as this one, and its sister publication Social Work in Canada: An Introduction, involves the work of a large number of people. From the outset, I have intended to make these books accessible to a wide audience—providing information and analysis in a clear and succinct manner. This would not have been possible without the generous feedback of students in my social work and social welfare courses. I thank them for their generosity and insight.

The first edition of this book owes a debt of gratitude to Allan Moscovitch and Keith Thompson. The idea for the first edition came from Allan, and it was Keith who believed that it could be done. I would also like to thank the graduate students that provided feedback and ideas, including Cheryl Parsons, Amy McGee, Kate Belcher, Teresa Raposo, Monica Reinvall, Carole Bourque, and Erin Brown. I would also like to thank the editorial team at Thompson Educational for their persistent and excellent work.

A Special Thanks

Thanks must go to Purnima Sundar at Carleton University for her contributions to the previous edition (“The Social Welfare of Immigrants”). The racialization of immigrant poverty is something that this country cannot afford to ignore. A special thanks too to Roy Haynes for his contribution to the second edition (“Disability and Social Welfare”).

A special thanks to Alvin Finkel at Athabasca University for substantially re-working the chapter on the early history of income security (Chapter 2) and developing an entirely new chapter on the recent history (Chapter 3) for this edition. Special thanks as well to Peter Graefe at McMaster University for his policy-making chapter (Chapter 5) and telling us how all this comes about, politically.

The significant changes to this edition were inspired by several anonymous peer reviewers. The book is greatly improved due to their feedback and I thank them all for their astute suggestions.

My family—Vaida, my partner, Justin, my son, and Kristina, my daughter—must certainly be acknowledged. The early phases of the “second edition” occurred while I was recovering from a serious head injury and their support kept me going forward. They also provided ideas that contributed directly to the work.